

Apprenticeship:

Benefits of Hiring Veterans

TECH QUEST
APPRENTICESHIP

Veterans possess valuable skills, but often need industry-specific experience and/or credentials to land a high-quality job following their transition from the military.

According to the Department of Defense (DOD), approximately 200,000 service members transition to civilian life each year.¹ Veterans often struggle to find employment and navigate the translation of the skills and knowledge gained from their military career to civilian career tracks. However, employers and organizations agree that veterans make for great employees and that hiring veterans is a smart business decision.

Apprenticeship not only provides a solid pathway to success, but is also an effective tool for veterans transitioning to civilian life. Through active mentorship, apprentices are provided support services that can increase a sense of belonging.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?
